A fashion lookbook: Jeremy Jimenez

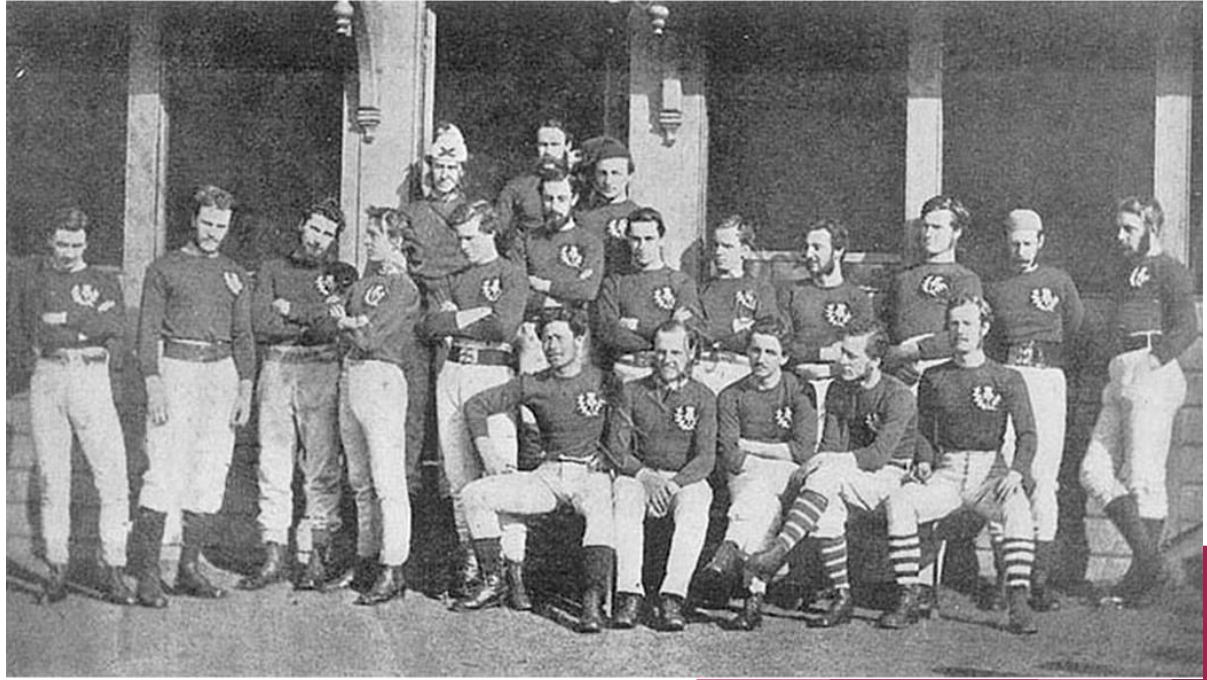

History behind Rugby Polo Shirts

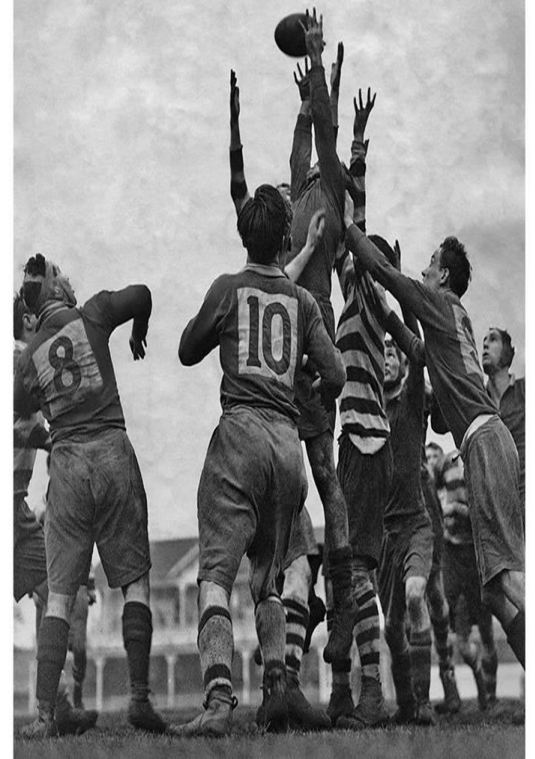

History behind the rugby polo shirts is simply in the name. Back in the 1800's, in the town of Rugby, England, where the sport was invented and first played. The shirts were made from wool which was the main material for clothing in those times. The material would eventually become to be uncomfortable and unideal for sporting. Over the years heavy cotton would be used in the rugby polo shirts and the popularity would grow past the sport and into everyday fashion.
